Speakers

Edmund S. Cibas, M.D.

Director of Cytology at Brigham and Women's Hospital Boston, MA and Professor of Pathology at Harvard Medical School

Paul VanderLaan, M.D., Ph.D.

Director of Cytopathology, Director of Thoracic Pathology at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Boston MA and Assistant Professor of Pathology at Harvard Medical School

Dr. Cibas and Dr. Vanderlaan are distinguished and highly esteemed experts in the field of Cytopathology who have dedicated their careers to improving the scope and accuracy of expert cytopathologic examination while applying the current principles of cytogenetics/molecular pathology and the ever-expanding field of Informatics toward the improvement of quality diagnostics in cytopathology. Their extensive professional experience will undoubtedly offer LASOP members and conference participants valuable insight into the ever-expanding field of cytopathology and its wide-reaching applications in Anatomic and Clinical pathology.

General Objectives

- Learn about the evolving minimally invasive tissue sampling modalities employed for pulmonary lesions
- Develop a contemporary approach to lung cancer diagnostics based on cytomorphology and ancillary testing
- Understand how ancillary testing in lung cancer directs clinical care and what this means for cytopathology laboratory

- Develop appropriate criteria for reducing the proportion of "atypical" thyroid FNA interpretations
- Learn the principles of molecular testing of thyroid FNAs
- Specific objectives for each lecture listed available upon request and on day of program

Who Should Attend

Pathologists, Residents, Fellows and Cytotechnologists
